

FILIPPO CURCURUTO

Filippo Curcuruto became a judge in 1974 and he was first appointed as a labour judge to a Court of First Instance. In 1980 he was assigned to a special office within the Italian Ministry of Justice, which is in charge of drafting pieces of legislation. Here he worked for several years dealing with issues, among others, related to European law.

Later on, from 1993 to 1998, he served at the Research Division of the Italian Supreme Court (the 'Ufficio del Massimario della Corte di Cassazione'). Afterwards, the Ministry of Justice appointed him Head of the office dealing with claims brought before the labour Courts by the Ministry's employees.

In 2002, he was appointed as a Member Judge of the Supreme Court assigned to the Labour chamber and was also nominated Member of the Supreme Court's Joint Chambers in civil-law matters, where he worked until 2011.

From 2005 to 2009 he was senior lecturer of Labour Law at the Postgraduate School of Law, at the University of Rome 'La Sapienza'. He currently gives lectures in many Universities.

From 2011 to 2015 he served as President of the Labour Court of Appeal of Rome. He retired in 2015.

He is the author of several publications in the fields of civil law, civil procedure, labour law, and European law. He recently edited a book in English about collective dismissals in the European Member States. He has also been involved in the initiatives carried out by the Associations of the European labour-law judges (European Association of Labour Court Judges – EALCJ, within the European Union, and the European Labour Court Judges – ELCJ, within the International Labour Office).
